

Expense Submission & Reimbursement Policy

Purpose

This policy establishes procedures for submitting business expenses and receiving reimbursement. Its goal is to ensure expenses are documented, approved and processed promptly while meeting tax and audit requirements.

Submission Timeline

Employees must submit expense reports within ten business days of incurring the expense or returning from travel. Late submissions may result in delayed or denied reimbursement unless approved by the CFO.

Required Documentation

- A completed expense report including the date of purchase, business purpose, cost center and itemized list of expenses.
- Original receipts for airfare, lodging, conference registrations and car rentals regardless of amount.
- Receipts for all other expenses of $75 or more. Receipts must show the date, vendor, amount, description of items or services and method of payment.
- Mileage claims must include the date, starting point, destination, purpose and number of miles traveled; reimbursement will be based on the standard mileage rate published by tax authorities.
- For international expenses, include currency conversion information and translate amounts into the company's reporting currency.
- Remove or redact sensitive information such as full credit card numbers, bank account numbers, passwords or personal identification numbers from all documentation.

Submission Process

- 1 Gather all receipts and supporting documents.
- 2 Complete the company expense report form, ensuring accuracy of amounts and account codes.
- 3 Attach scanned copies of receipts and any required forms, such as missing receipt affidavits.
- 4 Provide a clear business justification for each expense and note any attendees for business meals or events.
- 5 Submit the report to your direct manager for approval via the company's expense management system.
- 6 Once approved by your manager, the report will route to the finance team for review and reimbursement.

Missing Receipts and Exceptions

If a receipt is lost or unobtainable for an expense under $75, the employee may submit a missing-receipt affidavit detailing the expense. For expenses of $75 or more, the CFO must approve reimbursement without a receipt, and the employee should provide alternative documentation such as a credit card statement. Repeated missing receipts may result in denial of reimbursement.

Approval and Reimbursement

Managers are responsible for reviewing expense reports for accuracy, completeness and policy compliance. Expenses exceeding their delegated authority must be escalated according to the Approval Matrix. Once approved, the finance team will reimburse employees within seven to ten business days. Reimbursements will be made via payroll or direct deposit.

Record Retention

Employees should keep copies of expense reports and supporting documentation for at least three years. The finance department will maintain digital records in accordance with regulatory requirements.

Compliance

Submitting falsified receipts or claiming non-business expenses is a violation of company policy and may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.
